

Global Employment Law Forum

Non-competition agreements and protection of trade secrets /
Benefits and challenges of flexible working and the gig economy

You are invited to join us for an informative and interactive debate during which our panel of experts, drawn from around the world, will first discuss some of the global developments in the protection of employers' trade secrets and non-competition agreements. This will be followed by a discussion on the gig economy and flexible working. We will demonstrate to you how your company can protect confidential information by enforceable agreements and discuss the benefits and challenges of the gig economy and other models of flexible working. Made up exclusively of specialist employment lawyers from Multilaw firms around the globe, our esteemed panel will include speakers from the UK, Netherlands and Germany alongside a local UAE expert.

Part 1: Non-competition agreements and protection of trade secrets

- scope of confidentiality clauses and non-disclosure agreements
- non-competition during and after termination of employment
- options for non-competition agreements regarding certain professions or groups of employees

Part 2: Gig economy and flexible working

- examples of gig employees in the workforce
- other modern forms of flexible working
- benefits and challenges for employers and employees
