

HEUSSEN: Four Law Practices Once Again Awarded in Chambers Europe 2016

May 05, 2016: With its law practices Construction Law/Projects, Public Procurement Law, Real Estate Law and Information Technology, the HEUSSEN law firm has once again seen four of its main areas of consultancy make the list of the best of the best, this time in the current issue of Chambers Europe 2016. Add to that Uwe-Carsten Völlink, HEUSSEN partner at the firm's Munich office, who's listed among Germany's top 18 attorneys in public procurement law, and fellow HEUSSEN partner Dr. Jan Dittmann, who's listed among Germany's top 33 attorneys in the area of Construction Law/Projects.

The real estate law practice group at HEUSSEN covers real estate law in all of its facets from real estate transactions and due diligence all the way to the comprehensive legal support of construction projects, standard private building and architectural law, commercial landlord-tenant law as well as the field of renewable energies law. The group comprises more than 20 lawyers with exceptional expertise and highly successful track records, both nationally and internationally.

The public procurement law practice group at HEUSSEN specifically focuses on commercial law. It comprises a team of highly specialized lawyers pooling their expertise in public procurement law, public building law, environmental law/brownfield sites, energy law, privatization/outsourcing and European state aid law.

Likewise, information technology is covered by HEUSSEN's IT, IP & media law practice group, whose attorneys all have many years of experience and excellent reputations within their fields, having been recommended accordingly by leading law publications like the JUVE Handbook, Kanzleien in Deutschland and Legal 500 on many occasions. These attorneys combine technical and business acumen with industry and legal expertise to produce individual, hands-on strategies and solutions.

The selection of lawyers to make the list in Chambers Europe, one of the leading publications in the European legal community, is based on a comprehensive research process involving attorneys active in the selected law areas, who submit statements with specific information about the law practice work of their respective firms. The editorial staff at Chambers Europe then selects some of these lawyers for interviews about their specific law fields. The focus of these interviews is on the practical aspect of their law practices.
