HEUSSEN: Tax Advice for Krauss-Maffei Wegmann During Merger

Corporate groups Krauss-Maffei Wegmann (KMW) and Nexter Systems are planning to merge. In fact, both parties sealed the deal by signing an agreement on July 29, 2015 in Paris. The merger of these two corporations under the umbrella of a joint holding company gives birth to a Franco-German defense corporation worth nearly 2 billion Euros in annual turnover, with an order volume worth approximately 9 billion Euros and a workforce of more than 6,000 in total. However, the merger won't be complete without the necessary approvals. The merger agreement is expected to take effect at the end of the year.

Throughout the preparatory stages of the merger and the merger itself, KMW relied on a legal expert team from the corporate law firm HEUSSEN and their comprehensive tax consultancy covering international tax law, among others. Included in the legal expert team were Martin Grasser (Partner, tax law), Rupert Klar (Partner, tax law) and Anna Schneider (Associate, tax law).
