HEUSSEN: Green Light for Purchase of IT Finance Management System by Five State Colleges in Bavaria

June 04, 2020: State colleges owned by the Free State of Bavaria have been making strides in their move towards digitation: The state recently approved a bid for the introduction and implementation of a lean and efficient IT finance management system for standard college use at the local state colleges in Augsburg, Coburg, Ingolstadt, Landshut and Munich. Thus, by establishing a joint reference system based on a homogeneous technical concept, budget framework and coordinated processes, the state paves the way for all state colleges in Bavaria to adopt this standardized system.

A team of procurement law experts at the HEUSSEN corporate law firm, including its partners Uwe-Carsten Völlink, Dr. Iris Meeßen and Mark Münch (IT contract law expert), successfully assisted the Free State of Bavaria in its EU-wide bid for contracts bid, contract negotiations with interested bidders and subsequent review procedures.

Public procurement law has been a mainstay at HEUSSEN for many years. Here a team of five experts working out of the law firm's offices in Munich, Stuttgart and Frankfurt/Main, along with other seasoned lawyers in the field, render legal advice to public-sector clients in both national and EU-wide contract awards and represent them during review procedures or in court. One of their focal points is on the legal aspects of IT & digitation, in which their law advice particularly benefits public-sector clients like colleges and universities, research institutes as well as state, local and metropolitan municipalities along with their partners. The team's expert competence in case matters intersecting with IT law is indeed highly regarded among clients.
